TWO DRAMATIC ENTERTAINMENTS

Punchard Juniors Present Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen"—Members of November Club Sponsor Entertainment for Benefit of Andover Boy Scouts

"Seventeen" by Booth Tarkington, dramatized by Stanislaus Stange and Stannard Mears was the play chosen to be presented by the Junior class of the Punchard school in the Town hall on last Friday evening.

William Sylvanus Baxter, known to the boys as "Silly Willy" aged seventeen, girl-struck and passing through the throes of the period between boyhood and manhood was played by Stanley Swanton. The father and mother of William, strangely lacking in understanding of his admiration for his "baby-talk lady" or his fixed determination to possess evening clothes were portrayed by Frank Shiebler and Ella Larkin.

Dorothy Wade as Lola Pratt, the visitor in town who kept her hostess' piazza filled with admiring swains seemed more than plausable though the "baby talk" fitted her only like a borrowed garment. Her little dog "Precious Floppit" deserves a word of praise for her excellent manners in spite of the heat and confusion. The attractive and obliging hostess, May Parcher, was Dorothy Foster. The long-suffering Mr. Parcher who finally gave a farewell party to get rid of their troublesome guest was seen in the person of Robert Abercrombie. The rest of "the crowd" who played serenades, sang, took automobile rides and danced were portrayed most naturally by Elwood Chase, Robert Stone, James Tammany, Murray Urquhart and Margaret Laurie. The wall flower who aspired to console the inconsolable Willie when he couldn't get any dances with the adored Lola was Margaret Fairweather.

Every appearance of Samuel Gainey as the good-natured colored man-of-all-work was greeted with a round of applause. He too had a dog.

The hit of the show was Dorothy Winn as Jane Baxter, little sister of the much-tried Willie. Her bright eyes, alert ears, and nimble feet were everywhere. She knew all about Willie and was willing to pass along her information to anyone who would listen. She ate her bread and butter and applesauce and sugar with such relish that it seemed impossible that it was feigned. The bobbing curls, high pitched voice, and simple frock with its sash at "a dollar ninety eight" completed the picture of a child many years from being a high school junior.

"In all commemorations, such as that of this Memorial season," said Mr. Matthews, "there are two main purposes in view. The first is to help to quicken in the public mind an adequate appreciation of what has been done for us in the past, of what we owe to the labors and struggles of those who have gone before. The second is to incite men to earnest endeavor not only for the preservation of our heritage from the past but, beyond this, for the future improvement and progress of mankind."

THEATRES

METROPOLITAN THEATRE

Starting Friday, at the Metropolitan, Paramount's all-dialogue production, "The Man I Love," starring Richard Arlen and Mary Brian, with Jack Oakie and Pat O'Malley, is the feature screen attraction. This is the first time the screen has recorded the voices of Mary Brian and Richard Arlen and their tonal charm equals their personalities. Miss Brian sings the theme song, "Celia," with pleasing effect, and the picture might be termed a romance in words, song and action.

The story of "The Man I Love," is that of the life of a young prize fighter who marries before he has reached the height of fame. With nothing but ambition and a good right-punch he goes to New York to seek his fortune, and after a hard fight to wife (Mary Brian), he reaches the top, only to adhere to the temptations that are put in his way. The climax is fast-moving and interesting, when the boy fights his biggest fight, that of winning back the love of his wife, as well as the crown of the middleweight championship. Needless to say, he wins both. The pathetic situations which confront this young fighter, as well as the amusing incidents, help to make this the best picture that either of the two young stars have ever appeared in. The humorous situations and laughs are aided by Harry Green and Jack Oakie.

"The Man I Love" was directed by William Wellman, the man responsible for "Wings," "The Legion of the Condemned," "Ladies of the Mob," and other outstanding attractions. Although "The Man I Love" is not as spectacular as "Wings" or "The Legion of the Condemned," its dramatic situations are equally as tense as those portrayed in other Wellman productions.

Ted Claire, the "Joy Boy" will be welcomed back to the Metropolitan, after a week's absence, by the musical comedy "Surprise Party," with a cast of big-time vaudeville artists, including Zelaya, pianist; the Pasquali Brothers, headlining acrobats in America; Andrew and Louise Carr, sensational tap dancers; Richard Bold, baritone; Nell Jewell, soprano; and the Gluck-Sorel Girls.

"Kreisleriana", an orchestral feature, will be the overture presented by Guy Harrison, conductor of the Metropolitan Grand Orchestra.

"The Studio Murder Mystery," an all-dialogue Paramount picture, with Neil Hamilton, Chester Conklin, Warner Oland and Doris Hill, is No. 1 of the four big attractions to be presented at the Metropolitan Theatre during what is to be known as "June Banner Month."

Hold Annual May Procession

The annual May Procession of St. Augustine's parish in Andover was held Sunday afternoon followed by the usual exercises in St. Augustine's church. The procession formed in St. Augustine's parochial school and the children marched out of the front door of the school to Central street and proceeded to Chestnut street to Main street to Elm square, counter marched to Essex street and down Essex street to St. Augustine's church. The procession was led by Chief Frank M. Smith and a platoon of police followed the Color guard from Co. B., 182nd Inf. Massachusetts National Guard and the Gate of Heaven band from the Gate of Heaven church in Boston.

The procession was led by Rev. Charles A. Branton, O. S. A., pastor of St. Augustine's church. Fr. Branton was attended by Joseph McCarthy and Arthur Coleman in red cassocks.

Miss Veronica Doherty, student in the eighth grade in St. Augustine's parochial school, held the honor of May Queen, highest honor in the procession. Children in St. Augustine's parochial school and Sunday school and St. Joseph's Mission church Sunday school in Ballardvale participated in the procession. Brilliant sunshine and a comfortable temperature for the season contributed to the success of the occasion.

Rev. Charles A. Branton, O. S. A., gave a short sermon to the children in the church and congratulated them on their fine appearance. Miss Florence McCarthy read the act of consecration to Our Lady of Good Counsel. James Doherty read the act of consecration to the Sacred Heart. The May Queen, Miss Veronica Doherty, placed the crown on the statue of the Blessed Virgin Mary while the children sang the coronation hymn. The program in the church concluded with benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

Indian Ridge Rebekah lodge the first woman's fraternal organization in Andover started in 1902.

The originators were George D. Millett, Frank M. Smith and Frank L. Holt all P.G.'s of Andover lodge I.O.O.F. They were members of Crystal Rebekah lodge of Lawrence and in the latter part of 1902 started the work of canvassing for members and the other things necessary for the institution of the lodge.

The work progressed slowly at first. At about the same time work for a Rebekah lodge was started in North Andover where where progress was faster and Penelope Rebekah lodge was instituted first although they were not so fortunate later on and after several years effort to keep up the lodge they surrendered their charter.

After more than a year of work on the part of the originators the last plans were completed and on the afternoon of Friday, May 13, 1904, Indian Ridge Rebekah lodge, No. 136 I.O.O.F., was instituted in Odd Fellows hall.

The ceremony of institution was performed by the grand master Sumner P. Lawrence (now deceased) assisted by the Deputy Grand Master George H. Fuller and the other officers of the Grand lodge of Massachusetts.

There were twenty-six charter members, sixteen Sisters and ten Brothers who were formerly members of Ruth and Crystal lodges of Lawrence, Marion lodge of Roxbury and Oasis of Ware.

After the lodge was formally declared instituted the newly elected and appointed officers were installed by Mary A. Stebbins, president of the Rebekah Assembly and her suite.

Ada F. Snell, P.N.G., of Crystal Rebekah lodge, No. 85 of Lawrence was appointed the first Deputy Grand Master. Eliza Somerville of Ruth No. 2 was her marshal. Sister Snell and her suite paid the lodge many visits during her term as deputy.

Since then the lodge has had deputies from Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill and Wakefield lodges.

The Grand Officers were entertained at supper at Phillips Inn.

At 8 o'clock the officers proceeded to the town hall where it was necessary to have the evening meeting on account of the number of visitors, and the number of candidates to be initiated.

The work of the degree was perfxrmed by the officers and degree staff of Crystal lodge. Ada Spofford was the Noble grand.

One hundred and seventy-eight candidates were initiated, 178 Sisters and 42 Brothers making the total membership of the lodge 220. Marquette ON DISPLAY SATURDAY JUNE 1ST

A NEW SIX AT A PRICE WITHIN THE REACH OF MILLIONS

On Saturday, Buick will present the new Marquette—designed by Buick engineers and built in Buick factories. Marketed as an additional member of the Buick family, it will in no way affect Buick itself. Buick will continue to express the policies that made it the leader of the fine car field for the past quarter-century. In the smart, comfortable bodies of the Marquette you will recognize the fine hand of Fisher design. In its balance and poise you will see experienced engineering. And in performance—that final standard by which all cars are judged—you will find the Marquette leading its price class by an impressive margin. Be on hand when this eventful new car is shown Saturday. See what a remarkable new automobile Buick has produced at a price within the reach of millions.

The Popular Spot

The most excessive heat of the past few days, and especially yesterday, brought a mid-summer throng to the bathing beach at Pomp's pond. It is safe to say that yesterday more than eight hundred people sought relief from the humidity at this beach. Unfortunately the equipment has not been installed yet, and full advantage of the facilities was denied the bathers. If memory serves correctly, the weather during the last of May and the first of June is often ideal for swimming, and it seems logical to say that no more expense or inconvenience would be involved in placing the raft and guide ropes in position a month earlier. Of course to have the life guards on duty a month earlier would add expense, but, perhaps another year even this can be arranged to care for such an emergency as we have had the past week. Thanks to Frank McBride, chief life guard for the past few years, the situation has been handled admirably during the hot spell. He has given his own time and spent the day and evening keeping an eye on his young friends. It is fortunate that we have a man who is so conscientious and takes such an active interest in the welfare of our young people.

Memorial Day

Despite the fact that yesterday was the hottest Memorial Day on record, three of the four remaining members of Post No. 99 Grand Army of the Republic took part in the parade and the general ceremonies of the day, Henry Clukey, John B. A. Russell and James Saunders are veterans who now reside in Andover, and John Doyle the only member who could not be present now resides in New York. That these three Civil War veterans could be present on this occasion, sixty-four years after the end of the war, cannot fail to move something deep within us, and that they should enjoy such good health as to be able to take an active part in the exercises which were first instituted in honor of them and their departed comrades, is a privilege of the rarest kind. May these splendid Grand Army veterans continue to enjoy good health and be with us for many years to come.

Abbot Academy Notes

Frances Sullivan of Nashua, N. H. has been elected editor-in-chief of the Courant for next year.

On Sunday evening, May 26, the Rev. Raymond Calkins of the Shepard Memorial Church in Cambridge conducted the service and pointed three morals very effectively by telling three stories, in lieu of a formal sermon.

Heads of sports for the year 1929-30 are as follows: Tennis, Janet Simon, Manchester, Conn.; basketball, Alice Hoyt, Salem; hockey, Mary Smead, Toledo, Ohio.

Miss Bailey has announced the names of the candidates to the Cum Laude Society. The students will be formally initiated on Saturday morning at the chapel service, when all of the year's announcements will be made. The new members are: Louise J. Anthony, Garden City, L. I., president of the Senior Class; Elizabeth M. Bowser, Lawrence; Charlotte S. Butler, Meriden, Conn.; Elizabeth Jane Osborn, Arlington; Dorothy Field, Phillips, Me.; Lois Hardy, Wellesley Farms; Millicent C. Smith, New Bedford, president of the Student Council; and Olive Warden, Andover.

On Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, final examinations were held. On Thursday the examinations were checked so that all the school might go to the gate and salute the procession of veterans, for this is a custom that is very dear to Abbot.

Rally night with its banners and attractive colors, is the first celebration of the busy commencement-centennial week. Grouped upon the steps of Abbot Hall, the school will sing several songs under Mr. Howe's direction. Elizabeth McAllister, '29, head song leader, will lead the songs which have been written by Abbot girls, and she will be assisted by Jane Goodell. The other assistant leader, Despina Plakias, will not be present at the step-singing, for she is to be Monsieur Beaucaire himself in the Draper Dramatics which immediately follow the singing.

The Seniors may call the next two days their very own. Baccalaureate Sunday, with the Rev. Albert Parker Fitch addressing them, and the commencement vespers in the evening at Davis Hall when Miss Bailey will give them her helpful message, promises to be a day of inspiration. On Monday events follow one another quickly, with the tree and ivy planting, the service at the South Church, where President Neilson of Smith College will speak, and where the Seniors will receive their diplomas from Miss Bailey, the luncheon, Miss Bailey's reception to the Seniors and their friends, and last of all with the fine commencement concert in the evening—a constant succession of pleasures.

On Tuesday and Wednesday the D.O.G.'s hold sway, and everyone is going to wish that she were an alumna—if she does not happen to be one of the hundreds of alumnae present. The school grounds look beautiful; in spite of the excessively hot weather there is a happy spirit abroad at Abbot, and the tide of anticipation rides high as the Centennial approaches.

Lobster!

Of course you like it—everyone does—so a real treat is in store for you Saturday, June 8 at the Garden Party at the North Parish Unitarian church at North Andover.

There will be plants for sale and garden accessories, the finest of home-cooked foods, baked beans and brown bread, and candy. There will also be a "Mystery Table" for the children with all sorts of surprises to please the little ones. At the "Exchange Table" one can get wonderful bargains in all kinds of delightful "white elephants" in exchange for such small sums.

And then the Lobsrer Salad supper made of lobster fresh boiled by the ladies for only one dollar per plate—Of course you won't want to miss that!

Sale begins at two o'clock. Supper served at your convenience any time after 5.30.

Junior Helpers' Rally

About 175 children from the Junior Helper societies of the Congregational churches of the Andover and Woburn district and a few adults attended the rally held at the South church Saturday afternoon. Miss Caroline Sewall, children's missionary from China gave a short talk to the children and showed them Chinese clothes and other articles which she brought with her from China.

North Chelmsford had the largest representation with 54 children and South Lawrence was second with twenty-four. The children sang three hymns: "America, the Beautiful," "In Christ There Is No East or West," and "We've a Story to Tell to the Nation." Several of the Lowell boys played on sonaphones while the children sang. A North Chelmsford child gave a harmonica solo and another gave a reading. Howard Harrington was in charge of the music and Whittredge Clark played the organ.

After the program in the church the children adjourned to the lawn. Several children from the International Institute gave Russian and Italian dances and the Boy Scouts of the South church put on several stunts. Ice cream was served.

Andover Garden Club Visits Arboretum

Forty-two members of the Andover Garden club took advantage of the invitation extended to the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts to visit the Arnold Arboretum on Tuesday.

The hottest May 28 in history made the privilege of riding through the Arboretum by motor rather than walking about on foot much appreciated. The azaleas on Buzzey hill were a gorgeous show; lilacs were a little past their prime and hawthornes were not yet in bloom.

After spending several hours at the arboretum members of the Andover club were guests at the home of Miss Georgia Emery in Newton. Small tables were arranged in the garden where luncheon was served after which there was ample opportunity to study and admire the very successful rock garden and wild gardens. The return trip at night was made to Andover late in the afternoon.

Among those who took part in the trip to the Arboretum and were guests at the luncheon were: Mrs. W. D. Walker, Mrs. Gerard Chapin, Mrs. Jerome W. Cross, Mrs. Horace M. Poynter, Mrs. W. D. Walen, Mrs. Frank M. Benton, Mrs. Roy W. Spencer, Mrs. Addison B. LeBoutillier, Mrs. George F. French, Mrs. Frederic N. Chandler, Mrs. Byrne of Methuen, Miss Martha Smith, Mrs. Warren Stevens, Mrs. Harold A. Rutter, Mrs. Lewis Holt, Mrs. George Graham, Mrs. Everett J. Appoint Supervising Life Guard

John Robertson of Avon street was appointed supervising life guard at a meeting of the Pomp's pond swimming beach committee held on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Robertson was assistant life guard under Frank McBride during the season of 1927 He is a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Abbot Centennial Musicale

The musical event of Centennial week at Abbot Academy will be a recital by the entire music faculty of the school. Owing to the numerous events of this busy time, the concert has been so arranged as to be of moderate length but of distinguished quality.

The artists on the Abbot faculty have been thoroughly proven and may be depended upon to give a recital that shall be in harmony with the importance of the great event which the school is celebrating.

Bertram Currier, violoncellist, opens the program with the familiar, and deeply satisfying Air from the D major Suite of Bach. This is followed by a Scherzo by the familiar composer for the violoncello, Popper.

The glorious Variations Symphonique of Cesar Franck will be played by Kate Friskin, pianist, with Raymond Coon, pianist playing the second pianoforte. This music very nearly travels the whole gamut of emotion.

A group of songs which includes "Songs my mother taught me" of Dvorak, "Thou art lovely as a flower", of Liszt, and "Floods of spring", by Rachmaninoff will be sung by Ruth Thayer Burnham who always gives pleasure by her sympathetic performances.

Marie Nichols, so well and favorably known to Boston and Andover will play an effective group of short pieces.

Debussy's epoch making "Prelude a l' Apres-Midi d'un Faune," will be played on the lovely Abbot organ by Walter Edward Howe. This beautiful orchestral prelude revolutionized the tendencies of music in the latter part of the 19th century.

Raymond Coon will play the brilliant Chopin Scherzo in C sharp minor on the pianoforte, and the program will be concluded by the lyric song "Trees" of Mr. Howe, sung by Mrs. Burnham, Miss Friskin at the pianoforte, and with obligati by Miss Nichols, violin, and Mr. Currier, violoncello.

Admission to this recital is by ticket only. The concert is at eight and only prompt arrival will insure good seats.

Rev. John H. Sargent, pastor of the Highland Congregational church, Lowell, will occupy the Free church pulpit next Sunday.

Abbot Academy Sketches

Comes fresh from the press of Houghton Mifflin Company an attractive book: "Abbot Academy Sketches" by Katherine R. Kelsey, which, with the recently published "Cycle of Abbot Verse," happily marks the Centennial of Abbot. The author has been a teacher in the school for over forty years, and no one living could have limned these sketches with such fidelity and understanding. It is a labor of love.

The volume covers the period 1892-1912, between Miss McKeen's leaving the school and Miss Bailey's coming to it. As the title implies, the point of view is mainly biographical and personal—sketches of those women and men intimately associated with the life of Abbot during this period. The Drapers, Professor Park, Miss Watson, Miss Means, Miss Merrill, Professor Downs, Col. Ripley, Professor Churchill, Professor Taylor, Dr. Merriman, and many many others. Of these the sketches of Miss Means, Professor Downs, the Drapers and Professor Churchill seem to us especially adequate and happy.

The development of the Academy during a period of transition and expansion is traced along the lines of educational progress, building equipment, alumnae activities, religious interests, clubs and societies, music and dramatics, athletics, and social life.

These sketches will interest primarily the "old girls", who will delight in renewing their associations with the school; and the Abbot teachers and girls of today will find their intelligent loyalty to the school quickened by these sketches.

In the mind of even the casual reader of this readable book, two distinct impressions are left:—first, the rare devotion to this school on the part of those who have given unmeasured service and sacrifice to it; and, second, the precious personal gifts which contribute to the making of what we term the "traditions and spirit" of an old New England school.

Abbot Centennial

The gentle consideration of the fates which govern weather conditions is all that is needed now to make the celebration of Abbot academy's Centennial a complete success. After months of planning and work the arrangements are complete in every detail and the participation of a large company of Alumnae and friends is assured. It is a matter of much regret to the school authorities that the limited facilities have made it necessary to curtail the distribution of tickets to the various events but every effort has been made to accommodate the large number of guests. The public is invited to the after dinner speaking which follows the Centennial luncheon. This will be in the large tent in the rear of Draper Hall.

The Yankee Division band of Boston will take part in the exercises of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The leader of this band is Gerald F. Frazee, formerly organist at the Free Church.

Things to Remember about the Izaak Walton League

That the Izaak Walton League is not a Fish and Game Club. It is interested in the betterment of all outdoors and in the preserving of our natural beauties and wild life. It believes that there is health and happiness in the woods and along the streams and its aim is that you and your children's children shall have a chance to enjoy it.

That there are two thousand vigorous yearling trout in the rearing pool that are being fed daily and which should aid materially in making the six-inch trout look like a foot next April.

That eight hundred adult trout have been put in the streams in a radius of six miles of Andover.

The League means to do more. There are bird sanctuaries to be made. There is needed reforestation. Our streams are polluted. The Merrimack River was once a great salmon stream—what killed them off? There are endless things to be done.

Members are going to have Skeet Shooting soon.

The Chapter needs money.

Meetings are held the second Thursday of each month.

The Andover Chapter is trying to make the Harold Parker State Forest a Game Sanctuary

Publicity is needed.

Members are needed and enthusiastic ones. The State Department of the I.W.L.A. is offering a motion picture projector to the Chapter of under a hundred that increases its membership the most before June 1st. Renewals are counted. The Andover Chapter is close to fifty renewals and new members for April and May. New members are urged to send their names to M. L. Shields, Andover, before the first of June so that Andover will win the prize.

It has been suggested that the club raise pheasants. Mr. DeAcutis has offered to raise and feed twenty-five if the club would fix a pen on his property.

The following have been added to committees:

Membership—E. F. Lewis, J. DeAcutis W. A. Dufton.

Skeet—A. H. Wyman, F. L. Gould.

Auditing—A. H. Reed, H. M. Manthorne.

Conservation—R. H. Hoyer, J. C. Cromie, H. W. Gould, W. R. Hill.

Some Father!

Three children were discussing the incomes of their fathers. One said: "My father writes a song in an evening and sells it for $25."

"The next countered: "My father writes a story in an evening and takes it downtown the next morning and sells it for $50."

"That's nothing," declared the third. "My father gets up in a pulpit on Sunday and talks for half an hour, and it takes twelve men to carry the money up to him."

Worried for Sister

The lecturer was a geologist, and he chose as his subject Niagara Falls. He said that the Falls were slowly wearing back toward Buffalo, and that in the course of two hundred thousand years they would be worn back to Erie, Pa. Suddenly one of the girls began to sob convulsively. "What is the matter?" he asked in alarm.

"Oh," she wailed, "my sister lives in Erie."

Personal Delivery

"Won't you give a shilling to the Lord?" said a Salvation Army girl to an old Aberdonian.

"How old are ye lassie?" he inquired.

"Nineteen, sir."

"Ah, weel, I'm past 75, I'll be seein' Him afore you, so I'll hand it to Him mysel'."

MEMORIAL DAY

MEMORIAL SUNDAY EVENING

Hon. Frank P. Bennett, Jr., of Saugus was the speaker at the memorial exercises held Sunday evening in the Town hall. Commander Peycy Dole presided at the services.

Seated on the platform were Commander Henry Clukey and John B. A. Russell of General William F. Bartlett Post 99, G. A. R. Rev. Newman Matthews, Rev. C. Norman Bartlett, Rev. Frank P. Shipman, Rev. F. A. Wilson, D.D., Rev. Charles A. Branton, O. S. A., Commander Percy J. Dole of Andover Post 8, American Legion, Jesse Billington, Selectman Andrew McTernen, Selectman J. J. Daly, Town Treasurer Thaxter Eaton, Frederick E. Cheever, chaplain of Andover Post, 8, American Legion, Floyd W. Eastman, Mrs. Thomas W. Platt, president of General William F. Bartlett Woman's Relief Corps, 127, Mrs. William H. Navin, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Walter L. Raymond Camp, 111, Sons of Veterans, Mrs. Henry Long, president of the American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. Maude Bodenrader of Lawrence Daughters of Veterans and Mrs. Ada Irving, president of the Lawrence S. of U. V. auxiliary.

Music was furnished by the Punchard high school orchestra and the choir of Phillips academy. Rev. Frank R. Shipman offered prayer and Rev. Newman Matthews read a selection from the Scriptures. The orders were read by Jesse S. Billington, brief remarks were made by Commander Clukey and the roll of the dead was read by Chaplain Cheever. Recitations were given by Donald Dumont and Barbara Hickok, high school students and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Fr. Branton, O. S. A.

After paying tribute to the two survivors of the Grand Army, who were on the platform with him, Mr. Bennett took the history of the Grand Army as a text for his address. He spoke in part as follows:

Men who have been at war together acquire unusually strong bonds of friendship for their comrades. The ties that bind them have been welded in a time of common anxiety. That is the type of friendship which is most abiding. The friendship created in ordinary times, among people who have known nothing but common pleasures is not the deep friendship. But when men have lived for years together, in constant anxiety over the fortunes of war, have known what it is to have friends cut off right by their side, they develop an attachment to each other which even time cannot destroy. So, the men who had responded to the challenge of the Civil War simply had to organize the Grand Army because common friendship insisted that they do so.

But after a time, they found that a great order cannot exist on memories. When each veteran had told his stories of the war over and over again, then the appeal of the Post became much less strong. Other attractions drew the members away. Not until they made a great discovery did the members of the Grand Army build their order on such a firm foundation that it will never cease to be until the last of all members has answered the great call roll on the other side. The discovery they made is the same which Adam learned back in the Garden of Eden and that every fraternal order and every individual has learned in the centuries since. It is that to survive and have a virile existence, a man or an organization must have a job. Without work to do, men and organizations pass quickly out of existence.

Here is a man who has worked hard and is prosperous. He paints for himself a brilliant picture of the time when he shall retire from business with a pocket full of money or at least with enough to keep him for the rest of his days. He even plans to remove from the tiny town or unpleasant city where has been accumulating his means to take up his home among others who have prospered and have abundant leisure. After his dream has become a reality, he presently finds that idleness is the most unpleasant thing he ever knew, and that the chase of a golf ball day after day over 18 holes soon loses its appeal. And he turns back to work of some sort with an enthusiasm that surprises even the man himself. The case is the same with organizations. Your friend who joins the Masons or the Odd Fellows or the Knights of Columbus soon loses interest unless the order gives him work to do. Even Adam, in my honest opinion, which I think is not irreverent, did not leave Eden because of too much eating of forbidden fruit, but because he had himself discovered that through the sweat of his brow, as the quaint story teller relates it, he obtained the real measure of happiness. The Grand Army found that it must have a job and it discovered that job in the work of teaching patriotism and of fighting treason wherever treason lifted its ugly head.

They had work enough to do. At the beginning of the Civil War the population of this country was 32,000,000. Today it is 110,000,000 or more. That is a mammoth increase. It sets a world record among countries for increase of population. It resulted in large measure from immigration. The peasant in the bogs of Ireland, the Scandinavian who found it hard to drag more than a bare living out of the refractory soil of Norway and Sweden, or the Italian living in the hovel on the sides of the Apennines, lifted up his eyes and saw across the sea a country which offered a far larger share of the good things of life. He was venturesome like the men of these same countries who had helped to give America in the first place to the world. He was usually a very desirable addition to our people. But in this great tide of immigration there was sure to be some black sheep, just as there are in the best of families, to give a bad record to the whole group. These black sheep from time to time started those dangerous movements, that we group together, often incorrectly, under the name of Socialism and Communism. Against such forces the Grand Army found ample opportunity for usefulness. Thanks to its existence, to its persistent teaching of correct ideas about America, to its public opposition to all that is bad, America has been kept safe through the years.

We used to have apprehension as to who would take the place of the Grand Army now that its ranks have dwindled and the last roll call for the last member draws steadily nearer. We are no longer under that fear. We have found that the modest ranks of the Spanish War veterans and the great army which comprises the membership of the American Legion will take up the burden which is slipping off the shoulders of the Grand Army. (At this point Mr. Bennett expressed the belief to the members of the American Legion present that they must pass through the same difficulties of uninterested membership in the early years that the Grand Army experienced and that later on, as this task of protecting their country from dangerous movements becomes more distinct in their minds, they will become the large organizations with enthusiastic membership that the Grand Army has had.)

The work which the American Legion and Spanish War veterans must do is limitless. Two movements are distinctly threatening at the present moment, Bolshevism and Fascism. Senator Borah may condone Bolshevism at the safe distance of 5,000 miles or more from Moscow. He may declare his belief that Bolshevism is nothing more than the awkward attempt of a great people to work out their national freedom. But every honest investigator who has been in Russia declares that it is making of the Russians the most unhappy people in the world and is bringing them under a dictatorship as relentless as that of the Czar himself. That movement is particularly eager to establish itself in America. Its people are like a great hungry horde who look across the high stone wall into the land of plenty and are determined to get possession of it. One work of the American Legion must be to prevent any such unfortunate experience for America.

And then there is Fascism. In some ways it is more dangerous than Bolshevism. Its leader is an honest and a great man. When the long history of Italy is written a few years hence the name of Mussolini will deservedly stand in the same grouping with Julius Ceasar, with Augustus, and the other great men of Rome. But his theory that state is first and the individual merely a cog in the wheel of the state is wholly out of harmony with what we, of America, believe. He has recently decreed that no boy may leave the agricultural district and seek his fortune in the city except the government be satisfied that agriculture can spare him and that city life offers him a chance for success. We, of America, are bothered too that so many of our youth should be leaving the farms and seeking their fortunes in the city. President Hoover and his associates must have many a moment of anxiety over the growing danger to our food supply from this drift from country to city. But suppose he and his Cabinet and Congress should undertake to interfere with this movement of our boys and girls to seek their fortune according to their own ambitions! Why, the same voice that summoned the passengers to the Mayflower, that rallied John Winthrop's great colony to his standard, that called men out to die on the green at Lexington and at Concord Bridge, and that has been heard summoning our people to the colors in the wars since then, would call our people out once more to resist any such tyranny. The right of each American to work out his own salvation is our most precious privilege.

Farewell Party

A farewell party was tendered to Mrs. John Cargill Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lefebvre on Stevens street. Mrs. Cargill will sail on June 9th from Boston to join her husband in their former home in Arbroath, Scotland, where they will reside.

A number of relatives and friends gathered to wish her a safe journey and as a parting gift presented Mrs. Cargill with a purse of money.

Vocal and instrumental music was enjoyed and refreshments were served. Among those present were: Mrs. William Cargill; Mrs. Robert Cargill, Mrs. St. Jean, Mrs. Raymond Lefebvre, Mrs. David Lyle, Mrs. Gallagher, Mrs. Joseph Keith, Mrs. John Elder, Mrs. Archibald Davidson, Mrs. James Thompson, Mrs. Andrew Hamilton, Mrs. Edmond Dunwoody, Mrs. John Cargill.

Doves Win Over Beacon Oil Eleven

Smith & Doves defeated Beacon Oil Saturday at Andover by a big scoring game 7-3, in a Boston District league encounter in which Dave Gentles again was the scoring ace for the locals by scoring four goals out of the seven and chalked up his 25th goal of the season. Incidentally, this was the opening victory for the Doves under the new manager, Jimmy Low, played under a new role in the position of goaltender, Henderson the regular goalie having had the misfortune to break a leg in last Saturday's game at East Walpole.

In glorious weather, Beacon Oil came with a strong line-up, while the Doves played Sime and Henderson in place of Smith and McFarlane. The game was warmly contested and of a clean character, both sides giving a creditable display throughout.

The game had only been in operation five minutes when Dave Gentles opened the scoring from a clean breakway and displayed extreme coolness in planting the ball in the net. McLay was later all set for a drive which was charged down by Doyle. Beacon Oil pressed, and Gilbert hit the crossbar with a drive that came out, while Norman was close with a drive over the bar later.

Dave Gentles bagged the second goal after displaying a clean pair of heels to the backs, and three minutes later accomplished the celebrated "hat-trick" by turning a good centre by Bissett into the net. Beacon Oil reduced the lead and deserved to score, Gilbert doing his stuff after a neat effort on the left flank. The Doves came to the front again when Anderson dropped in a fine centre for Scott to drive the leather home. Half time was called with Smith & Doves leading 4-1.

The second half was lively and within a few minutes McLay came into his own after a brilliant effort to finish with a drive in the net making the score 5-1. Both sides played cleverly, Low having to come to the rescue on two occasions by throwing the ball out, he was much handicapped with an injured knee. The Beacon Oil front line combined well, the two Ballantynes on the wings being much in the picture.

Beacon Oil again reduced the lead when J. Ballantyne netted in brilliant fashion. However, the Doves always kept well to the front in scoring, as Dave Gentles headed his fourth goal from a good centre. Richardson and the two Ballantynes again displayed clever footwork, the former having the hardest of luck with a drive that came close. Just before the finish, McLay made the score seven after beating all opposition to plant the ball between the uprights for the final goal of the game, Smith & Doves running out good winners by 7-3.

Mal Hallett at Roseland Ballroom Tonight

Peerless Mal Hallett will personally lead his Columbia recording orchestra at Roseland-on-the-Merrimack this evening. The greatest attraction in ballroom dancing in America has rare ability and a personality quite his own. He seems to sense better than anybody else just what his audience wishes to hear and dance to and he proceeds to give his patrons just what they want. There are other great bands in this country; many of them have been heard at Roseland and others will be heard there before the present season comes to an end. But there is just one Mal Hallett and the clicking turnstiles tell the story of his tremendous popularity better than anything else. His every appearance at Roseland is the signal for a gathering in excess of two thousand people—and they all enjoy themselves from start to finish.

This has been a banner week at Roseland. Check dancing parties have been held on Wednesday and Thursday evenings and there will be another one tomorrow evening. The Jersey Jicc-Jaccs, Roseland's own popular band, will occupy the orchestral stage on this occasion. That the local musicians have won a large measure of popularity in their own right has been evidenced by the shattering of all previous attendance records for check dancing. All admission dance records have gone by the boards also, Mal Hallett having personally given his attention to this accomplishment. Well-behaved crowds and the best dance floor in the Merrimack Valley have also been contributory factors to this success.

Photographically Speaking

The irate customer shook his portrait in the photographer's face. "Do I look like this picture? The thing's an outrage! Why, you've given me an awful squint and the look of a prize-fighting bully. Now, answer me, and no nonsense about it! Do you call that a good likeness?" The photographer scanned the print, then looked at the customer. "The answer," he said, "is in the negative." And the customer went away with a look of deep thought on his face.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

THE SCOUT OATH

On my honor I will do my best—

1. To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout Law.
2. To help other people at all times.
3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight.

Work is progressing very favorably on the overnight cabin for the Andover Scouts on Holt Hill. Last Saturday eight scouts under the direction of Mr. Richard of Shawsheen practically completed the foundation on the front wall of the cabin. Eagle Scout John Ramson of Phillips academy, who is at present connected with Troop 3, seems to be a good prospect for a mason; he sure can lay stones.

John Armitage of Shawsheen who has been appointed to West Point has been a Scout for three years and is now serving in Troop 1 of Shawsheen as a Junior Assistant scoutmaster. We are mighty proud of John. His dad is in Scouting too, as a troop committeeman in Troop 1. And Charlie Jr. is in that troop too, —a family affair.

All the Scouts of the North Essex council have been invited to Methuen on Friday and Saturday of this week. Each troop is planning to send a Patrol of eight boys under the direction of a patrol leader. The boys will arrive at Gorrel Woods in Methuen on the Searles Estate as soon as possible after school on Friday, and there they will pitch their own tents and do their own cooking until Saturday evening. There will probably be five patrols from Andover and next week we will tell you how many spuds were burned, —not to mention fingers.

All scouts not going to Gorrel Woods are urged to help on the cabin on Saturday afternoon. The truck will leave 84 Main street at 2.00 p.m., as usual to take helpers to the hill.

We inadvertently ommitted the name of Scout James McCord from the list of Andover scouts attending the First-Aid course. This will make it O.K.

As usual the Scouts are much in evidence and doing many good turns at Memorial Day time. Last Sunday the Scout Bugle & Drum Corps supplied the music for the Memorial parade and exercises at the river. In the evening Scout David Petrie blew "Taps" at the Town hall exercises and Scout Donald Dumont gave a most masterful presentation of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

On Wednesday evening the various troops helped distribute flowers to the graves in the different cemeteries,—Troop 1 at West Parish; Troop 2 at Spring Grove; Troop 3 at South church; Troop 5 at Christ church, and Troop 6 at St. Augustine's.

Assistant Deputy Commissioner Wendell Kydd had charge of the Scouts in the parade on Sunday. Not many were in line because the scouts of St. Augustine's were attending a church service, but those who did attend made a very good appearance.

The benefit performance in the Town hall on Tuesday night was one of the finest we have seen and those who stayed away because of the heat missed a fine entertainment It is too early to be able to report on the financial success, but it looks as though a considerable sum would be realized.

BABSON SAYS BUILDING RECOVERS IN FACE OF HIGH MONEY RATES

Decline in Residential Building Offset by Gain in Other Types—Industrial Building Is Holding Up Well and Public Works and Utilities Are Forging Ahead—Building for Speculation Falls Off

Babson Park, Massachusetts, May 31, 1929. Statistics clearly indicate that high money rates have adversely affected certain kinds of building and will continue to do so until rates are lower. On the other hand, the construction industry as a whole has made a surprisingly good record considering this adverse factor. The type that has been hardest hit has been speculative building, particularly of large apartment houses and small home subdivisions. Industrial building on the other hand is holding up well, and public works and utilities are forging ahead. The result is a balancing of total construction so that current activity is only about one per cent below last year.

Contracts awarded in the first three months of 1929 were disappointing. Cold and wet weather over most of the country were undoubtedly a contributing factor to the delay in starting new projects. High money rates were a vital factor, but probably less influential than has been commonly asserted. Money rates alone have not controlled building. Otherwise there would not have been the sharp recovery in April when money rates were even higher than in the earlier months of the year. As a matter of fact, numerous industrial concerns have been able to finance new plants without resorting either to bond issues or mortgage loans. Some of this has been done by issuance of stock and some out of surplus earnings. In New York the financing of hotels and other large projects by a new stock financing plan is proving very successful. Moreover, the ability of the building industry to maintain so great activity as it has under extreme money conditions undoubtedly testifies to the great latent demand for new construction. As soon as interest rates return to a more normal level this piled-up demand should cause another spurt in building operations.

Building for Speculation Falls Off

It seems that speculation in the building business has suffered more from high money than speculation in the stock market. The real estate men tell me that the slackness in residential is primarily due to the public placing its fund in the stock market. At any rate, residential building over the first three months of 1929 was 34 per cent below the same period in 1928. April showed a recovery. In that month residential work was only seven per cent below the same month last year. Nevertheless, the pressure continues against large apartment house enterprises, and cannot be expected to lift until money rates fall.

In sharp contrast, public works and utilities in April were 30 per cent ahead of April a year ago. Industrial building including factories, warehouses, etc., also gained sharply in response to demand for increased production facilities.

Where Building Is Best

Counting all types of construction, figures compiled by F. W. Dodge Company for April showed greatest activity in the Middle Atlantic states. In the states of Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia and Virginia there was the largest monthly total ever recorded for that section. To be sure, several exceptionally large contracts of a commercial and public utility type helped to swell the total; but general building activity was also well sustained. New York State and Northern New Jersey showed sharp recoveries from the poor months earlier in the year. April contracts in that section were 12 per cent larger than April, 1928. A few big contracts for highway construction and one huge hotel contributed to this gain, but activity was general throughout the district.

New England building showed a 29 per cent gain in April over March, but was still ten per cent under April last year. In the North Western States of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Michigan, building has recently been one of the bright spots on the business map. Contracts awarded in April this year were 54 per cent ahead of last year. It is noteworthy that 30 per cent of this total was for public works and utilities and 23 per cent for industrial projects, indicating the great activity for engineering projects throughout the Northwest. Residential building was only 19 per cent of the total in that district.

Heavy Building in the South East

Another prosperous building area is the South Eastern States, including Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, North and South Carolina. This territory reports the second highest April volume of building on record. It was 52 per cent ahead of March and 19 per cent ahead of April last year. Here again industrial projects, public works and utilities accounted for the sharp gain. These two classes alone constituted 60 per cent of all construction work.

Texas Continues Active

For the first four months of this year Texas has consistently shown a high volume of construction comparing favorably with the record figures of a year ago. In this state 36 per cent of the work was residential, 24 per cent for commercial building, 19 per cent for public works and utilities and six per cent for schools. A large amount of new building is planned for this district during the next few months, the contemplated projects running in value 46 per cent ahead of last year.

Cold Weather Retards Operations in Central West

Weather conditions have doubtless had much to do with the delay in building operations in the Central West. The Spring has been unusually cold throughout this area and the Winter was severe. For the first four months of the year new construction contracts were 14 per cent less than in the same period of 1928. Residential work is nearly half of all building in this area and since residential building has been the most adversely affected by the money situation it has reduced the total volume of construction considerably. There are a number of large utility and industrial projects planned for this area including the States of Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Good Time to Build For a Home

While money is high and hard to obtain for speculative building purposes, this does not apply to the man who wants to build his own home. There is plenty of money to be had for this purpose, and rates are just about the same as they have always been. The average man will be far better off to forget the stock market and put his money into a home. He can do this through the savings banks, the co-operative banks, or building and loan associations. Instead of paying 8 to 10 percent interest to brokers on margin accounts in stocks and possibly losing half of your principal is it not wiser to employ your money in the construction of a home—a thing of permanent value and satisfaction? Moreover, with prospects for a higher tariff on lumber, cement and other building materials building costs may advance later on. The present looks like as good a time as any to build your own home. Business by the Babsonchart is now 7 per cent above normal compared with 5 per cent above a year ago.

Andover Woman Contests Will

After the will of the late Edward H. Everett of Old Bennington, Vermont, leaving the bulk of an estate estimated at several millions to the widow, Grace Burnap Everett, had been allowed in Probate Court today, attorneys for two daughters by a previous marriage, Mrs. Lucius A. Wing of New York and Mrs. James K. Selden of Andover, Mass., filed an appeal from the allowance. Edward L. Bates of Bennington and Warren A. Austin of Burlington, attorneys for the contesting heirs, did not indicate the ground upon which the appeal was made.

The will apparently leaves the bulk of the estate, estimated at several millions, to the widow, Grace Burnap Everett. All of the shares in the Edward H. Everett company, in which it is believed most of the testator's property, both real and personal, had been incorporated, are bequeathed to Mrs. Everett.

The residuary estate is divided into tenths, five of these fractions being given to the widow and one each to three daughters by a former marriage. Mrs. Julius A. Wing of New York, Mrs. Guilio Turri of Florence Italy, and Mrs. James K. Selden of Andover, Mass. Two-fifths of the residuary estate are left in trust for two young daughters of the widow, Grace Elizabeth and Sarah Everett, to be invested for their benefit by the trustees until they shall have reached the age of 30, when they are to be given both principal and increment.

The greater part of one of the four typewritten pages comprising the document disposes of a lace overdrape that belonged to Everett's mother and was last used by one of his youngest daughters, Mrs. Selden, at her marriage.

The testator became identified with Bennington when a small boy following the marriage of his mother and the late Henry W. Putnam. He later located in Cleveland where he and a partner, developed a machine for the manufacture of glass bottles. The Everett factory at Newark, O., was ultimately absorbed by the American Bottle company of which Mr. Everett was vice president when he disposed of his holdings and retired 20 years ago.

Soon after he ceased being a manufacturer he returned to his boyhood home and purchased several farms in the foothills of Mt. Anthony that have since been developed into the largest individually owned fruit orchard on the continent.

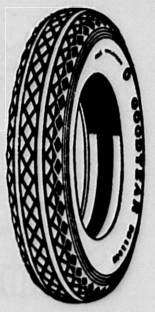

Police Court Notes

Martin Casey of 135 Main street and Mrs. Annie Lawton of Portland, Maine, were in Andover on Tuesday. They were arrested on May 17 charged with drunkenness and driving while under the influence of liquor. Their cases will be heard in the Lawrence District Court, probably on Tuesday.

Conrad Soucy and James Moore of Lawrence charged with stealing lead and iron pipe from a house on Chandler road in April have been placed on probation pending the location of Edward Gallant also of Lawrence who is supposed to be implicated in the larcenry.

Charles W. Hall of Cambridge charged with driving while under the influence of liquor was found not guilty.

Bowling Season Closes

The Square and Compass Club bowlers had their last tilt of the season Tuesday night when teams captained by Roy E. Hardy and Joseph H. Higginson battled on the Shawsheen alleys. The Hardy quartet was too strong for the opposition and took all four points despite a first string of 130 by skipper Higginson his best effort of the season. The Hardys won the pinfall by 55.

For the winners G. A. Christie was high with 107 and 304. Roy Hardy hit 104 and 303, and Joe Higginson led his team with 130 and 308.

Punchard High Has One Large Inning

A nine-run rally in the fifth inning enabled the Punchard High baseball team to score a 11 to 7 victory at Andover Monday afternoon over the Howe High team of Billerica.

Previous to that inning the Billerica boys held a lead of 6 to 1, but three hits and errors of omission and commission by the visitors gave Punchard a good lead before the fifth inning closed.

Captain Peter O'Connor of the Punchard team went to bat twice in the fifth and each time cracked out a double, being responsible for three runs crossing the plate besides scoring one himself in that inning.

Punchard will play its next game on Wednesday afternoon when Johnson High team is entertained at Andover in a suburban league contest.

MEMORIAL DAY

Three of the surviving members of General William F. Bartlett Post 99, G. A. R., Commander Henry P. Clukey and Comrades John B. A. Russell of Ballardvale and James Saunders rode in the porcession on Thursday morning. Comrade James Doyle is not now a resident of Andover and was unable to be present.

Brilliant sunshine and heat such as seldom experienced at this season ushered in Memorial day.

Observances commenced at Memorial hall at half past eight when a line was formed, led by a platoon of police, Frank M. Smith, chief and McDonnell's Military Band, and including Andover Post 8, American Legion, Camp 111, Relief Corps, S. of U. V. and its auxiliary and the Andover Boy and Girl Scouts marched to Memorial Hall to decorate the tablets and shield of the Civil War and World war veterans. At these exercises Commander Clukey was the sole representative of General William F. Bartlett Post.

Prayer was offered in the hall by Rev. F. A. Wilson and under the portico by Rev. Charles W. Henry. The roll of the dead was read by Chaplain Cheever after which a talk on the significance of the day addressed especially to the young people was made by Allan V. Healey, instructor in English at Phillips academy.

Mr. Heely spoke as follows:

In a few moments men and women of all ages and in various uniforms will assemble in parade and march about the town. The stirring music of brass bands will fill our ears. Men will lay wreaths and flowers on soldiers' graves, and rifles will bark a sharp salute. Do you ever wonder why? Of course, we are used to the parades and the bands; and the marchers, we know, are honoring the memory of fallen comrades—friends, relatives, strangers. It seems to us natural and right that they should do this. But the fields on which they fought are only names to most of us, and the battles strange and far-off, finished long before some of us were even born. And so, without realizing what it is about, we enjoy the glitter and the show. We line the streets to cheer the veterans as they pass, and we join in the holiday air of things. The idea that it may mean something real to us probably never enters our heads. We take Memorial Day very much for granted.

And yet, with a little thought, the youngest of us finds that Memorial Day really touches all our lives. "But how can we possibly realize what it means?" some will ask. "We have neither fought nor died." True. But the point about the men we honor today that brings them close to us is not their fighting or their death, but their sacrifice. And all of us have sacrificed. All of us know what it is to give up something in order to gain a greater end. We know what you cannot excel at anything in this world except by sacrificing skill at something else; that the strongest are the ones who can give up the most, for they are the ones that gain the most. Isn't that so? Our lives are made up of work and play and family and friends; and as often as we turn from the pleasures and rewards of one to meet the demands of another, we know the sting and the bracing power of sacrifice. Imagine, then, that something came along so big that you felt called upon to give up not simply one, but all, and perhaps forever. Suppose that everything that made life exciting and adventurous and dear had to be laid away, while you went off in a cause which you felt was greater than everything else. Suppose, finally, that you gave your life for that cause. That, you say, would be sacrifice up to the hilt, sacrifice in full measure and running over.

Well, that is what these honored dead have done.

"These laid the world away; poured out the red
Sweet wine of youth; gave up the years to be
Of work and joy, and that unhoped serene
That men call age; and those who would have been,
Their sons, they gave, their immortality."

They have shown us that men can still forget themselves unto death for a cause which seems to them greater than life. And in so doing they have made life greater and nobler and more hopeful, because they have shown us how fine a thing is sacrifice, and because they have reminded us that mere selfishness can never carry a man to his highest reach. We can underrstand that, and thank them for it, if we are wise.

The danger is, of course, that we shall not believe them. The danger is that we shall again grow so wrapped up in our little selfish interests that we shall forget the bloody lesson they have taught. And then more millions of brave men and women must once more sacrifice their lives to bring us to our senses. The heroes of Memorial Day are sacred. The best that we can do for them is not good enough. The only question is whether we are good enough to do it. And the test of our worthiness seems to me to be this: As they died self-sacrificing deaths, can we live self-sacrificing lives? As they died for their country, can we live for her? I think it ought to trouble us unless we can answer Yes to both those questions. It seems to me that the dead would want us to be able. To believe with them in the nobility of sacrifice, and to keep in our hearts, not once a year, but every day, the task which they have handed on to us—that seems to me to be the spirit of a true Memorial Day.

The parade then formed and marched up Main street to the Memorial tower where its approach was heralded by the playing of the carillon.

Remarks were made by Commander Dole and Headmaster Alfred E. Stearns after which a wreath was laid on the pedestal at the base of the tower of Chaplain Cheever, a salute was fired and taps were sounded.

The procession then marched down School street where the students of Abbot academy were drawn up to pay honor to the veterans of three wars and proceeded to the South church. The usual salute was fired and taps were sounded.

Exercises were held later at Spring Grove and West Parish cemeteries.

The order of exercises:

THE WEATHER AND INVESTMENTS

Babson Shows the Importance of Weather Changes to Corporation Earnings and Securities

Babson Park, Massachusetts, May 20, 1929. "Statistics clearly show that favorable or unfavorable weather conditions have an important influence on corporation earnings and securities. Hence, long range weather forecasting, when it is further developed in accuracy, may some day be an important help in judging earnings' possibilities and security trends. At first thought it might appear that there is little connection between weather and investments, but deeper study proves just the contrary. The most important factors in the trend of security prices are the present and future earnings of the companies. One of the most important factors in the earnings of large groups of corporations is the weather.

Railroads Vitally Affected

"Practically all of our great Western and Southwestern railroads depend for a large part of their earnings on crops. If there is a crop failure owing to drought, early frosts or other abnormal weather conditions, the railroads suffer accordingly. To the extent that the meteorologists are able to predict with reasonable accuracy the general trend of weather for three to nine months ahead, we should be able to tell pretty nearly what these railroads will earn. Knowing the probable earnings, investors will have a valuable guide to the purchase or sale of railroad securities.

"There are other ways in which weather affects railroads' profits. Snow removal is a tremendous expense item; and extreme cold requires greater fuel consumption, tends to retard freight movement, and increases expenses. In the past Winter we have had a clear illustration of how abnormal weather increases expenses and cuts down profits. During January and February the Middle-western and North-western sections of the country had extremely cold and stormy weather; whereas along the Atlantic Seaboard the Winter was warmer than normal and with less snowfall. In the two months of January and February net profits of the North-western carriers were cut down severely. For example, although the gross business of the Great Northern Railroad was some $432,000 greater in these two months than in the same months of 1928, the operating expenses were $1,000,000 larger than last year, due principally to heavy snowfall and extreme cold. Maintenance of way alone cost $500,000 more than it did in the same period in the year previous. Thus, in spite of generally active business and heavy freight traffic, net earnings were 51 per cent lower.

"In sharp contrast to this situation we find the New Haven road on the Eastern Seaboard, experiencing a comparatively mild Winter and low operating costs. While the New Haven's gross business in the two months of January and February was $364,000 larger than in 1928, the net operating income was $1,178,000 larger. This was because favorable weather conditions made possible a 7 per cent reduction in operating expenses. Maintenance of way alone was $400,000 less in 1929 than in 1928, and other operating expenses were correspondingly reduced. The strong position of the New Haven's securities during the past few months has in no small measure been made possible by favorable weather conditions.

Hot Weather Affects Restaurant Profits

"The president of one of the largest chain restaurants in New England attributed the poor earnings of that company last year to the abnormally hot season in the third quarter of the year. In a section which is normally cool, the temperature in July and August last year ranged from 2 to 4 per cent above normal. Net profits of this great chain restaurant system in this period fell off 30 per cent compared with the same period in the preceding year. Thus, in spite of a 9 per cent gain in earnings in the first six months of 1928, which were abnormally cool and favorable to restaurant sales, the spell of torrid weather in the third quarter offset the previous gains and caused the company to end the year with a decline in net income of about $100,000 compared with the preceding year. Naturally such an adverse influence prevented the company's stock from participating in a general upward movement which was characterizing the general market at the time. Hence, it is very clear that weather is highly important to investors in restaurant securities.

"Illustrating how the same type of weather affects different groups of companies in different ways, the very hot third quarter of 1928 was a potent cause in boosting the earnings of the soft drink manufacturers. One of the largest of these, a manufacturer of a nationally advertised ginger ale, showed earnings in the exceptionally hot weather of July and August of 1928, 83 per cent ahead of the corresponding period in 1927. This company ended the year with a gain of 30 per cent in profits, primarily caused by exceptionally favorable weather conditions during two months of the year. Another great soft drink company, which had shown very slight gains during the first two cold quarters, jumped its earnings in the third quarter over 10 per cent compared with the previous year, and ended the year with profits 11 per cent above 1927. Stocks of both of these companies are listed on the New York Stock Exchange, and they reflected by substantial advances the very favorable earnings' trend which developed in the third quarter of 1928. Certainly, investments in soft drink corporations are vitally affected by weather conditions.

"Practically all business is directly or indirectly influenced by weather. Surely if you ask the manager of a department store he will tell you emphatically that weather is a crucial matter to his business. The stores suffered severely from the cold Spring of 1928. This year, however, the month of March, in which spring sales begin, was exceptionally warm, and coming at a critical selling season, offset the unfavorable conditions which have since prevailed during April. This is true except on the Pacific Coast and in some of the Gulf States. The rubber foot-wear companies selling in the Eastern area had their earnings seriously cut down this Winter, while those distributing in the Northwest experienced good business. If we have a hot Summer this year, the ice cream and dairy manufacturers will flourish; if it is unusually cold they will suffer. Their securities will fluctuate accordingly.

Hot Summer Predicted

"Weather forecasting from three to six months ahead is still far from an exact science, but much progress has been made by certain scientists for certain sections of the country. Doubtless in time these studies will be extended to cover the entire country. Based upon the deductions of one of the foremost of these scientists, the average temperature of May should be somewhat cooler than normal in the North Atlantic States and somewhat warmer than normal in the Lake States. June is likely to be cool, but July warmer than normal in both the North Atlantic States and Lake States. Rainfall in May and June will probably be above normal in the North Atlantic States. Indications point to weather, as hot or hotter than, last Summer.

"Of course, other specific conditions must be taken into account, but it looks as though this would be a good period for the soft drink companies, the sports goods manufacturers, the ice cream and dairy companies, beach resorts, summer hotels, ice manufacturers, electric refrigerator and electric fan manufacturers, and other lines which benefit by hot weather. If this weather prediction comes true, securities of such companies will unquestionably benefit. Business by the Babson-chart is now 6 per cent above normal compared with 3 per cent above a year ago."

A woman advertised for a man to work in her garden, and two men applied for the job. While she was interviewing them, she noticed her mother was making signs to her to choose the smaller.

When the woman were alone, the daughter said: "Why did you signal to me to choose the little man, mother? The other had a much better face."

"Face!" exclaimed the other. "When you pick a man to work in your garden, you want to go by his trousers. If they're patched on his knees, you want him; if they're patched on the seat, you don't."—Open Road.
